Marathon County Restorative Justice Teen Traffic Program

In May 2014, The Marathon County Restorative Justice Teen Traffic Violation Program was created in the City of Wausau. The program is for individuals who are new to driving and have their probationary licenses.

The goal of the Marathon County Restorative Justice Teen Traffic Program is to take the responsibility off the parents and hold the teen drivers responsible for their own traffic citations they received.

The offender is required to appear in court after receiving a traffic citation. Individuals that are willing to participate in the Restorative Justice Program are required to attend an hour long conference with an officer to discuss the offense. Details the probationary driver would discuss with the officer are parents reaction, parental punishments, how they felt when the officer stopped them, what distractions surround them while driving, and what they could do in the future to change their driving behaviors.

The Restorative Justice Teen Traffic Program also requires the teen driver to complete an essay on the process they have gone through and what they have learned. This essay is submitted to the facilitator, the officer, and the Municipal Judge. Participants are also required to complete community service at an approved location. The amount of community service is determined by the initial citation that was issued to the teen driver.

If the teen driver successfully completes the requirements of the program in the allotted sixty days, their citation will be dismissed as well as the extension of their probationary status. If the program is not successfully completed the City of Wausau Municipal Court judge will be notified and the teen driver will have to report to Municipal Court.

The Marathon County Restorative Justice Teen Traffic Program has had 90 teen drivers successfully complete the programs since it's creation in 2014.

If you would like to discuss the program further or have any questions contact Officer Nicholas Stetzer at (715) 261-7953 or Paula Schultz of Marathon County Restorative (715) 359-5360
