To provide some protection to homeowners and to reduce the number of uninsured contractors, the State requires that building contractors have the following:

- A Dwelling Contractor certification (to verify proof of responsibility and minimum insurance limits) and that one of their employees holds a Dwelling Contractor Qualifier certification (minimum continuing education requirements to maintain some level of contractor competency);
- If a homeowner hires a building contractor that does not have the above credentials, the contractor must still be registered with the State and have what is called a Building Contractor Registration. However, the homeowner will have to obtain the building permit and must sign a waiver form.
